Being in a Catholic Lasallian school is special to me because you build another family here. You always look forward to coming and seeing your friends and teachers. The teachers are always there for you to help you and to talk to you about anything. At a Lasallian Catholic school you can practice your faith and what you believe in. You can always come here to your extra family and just relax. The teachers are an amazing support group and will push you to do your best. There is no giving up and no backing down. They teach you that if you set your mind to something the sky is the limit. They teach you above and beyond what you think your limit is. You develop your own personal relationships with each of your teachers. They know what your best is and you can guarantee they will push you that far, if not farther. I'm so grateful to be at such an amazing school.
